Do you speak American?

Journalist and writer Robert MacNeil travels from north to south, east to west, to answer questions such as: Why is the English spoken by Maine lobstermen so different from that spoken by Texas cowboys? What constitutes "standard English" in the U.S. today? Will Spanish displace English altogether? How is English linked to issues of race, gender, and class? Programs are a study of the ongoing evolution of American English - rich in regional variety, strong in global impact, and steeped in cultural controversy.

Prescription drug abuse is a serious problem. Drugs such as vicodin, oxycontin, and methadone can be just as deadly as illegal drugs, and often, easier to get. Unfortunately, because these drugs are prescribed by a doctor, many people don't realize just how deadly they can be. In "Rx To Die For", addiction treatment experts will teach how these drugs can destroy your body and brain, and victims who have experienced the devastating effects first hand will tell their stories. If you know someone who doesn't know the dangers of prescription drug abuse, show them "Rx To Die For". It could be the most important program they'll ever see.

Greatest speeches of the 20th century: voices in time Series -

Explains that, in the days before radio and television, President Woodrow Wilson was considered one of the greatest orators of his generation. Wildly popular with the American electorate for his pledge to keep the United States out of the Great War. In 1917, however, the Zimmerman note and unrestricted U-boat attacks pressured him to ask Congress for a declaration of war. America's entry into the war, broke the deadlock of relentless trench warfare and led to Wilson's "Fourteen Points" speech, which he believed would drastically reduce the chance of future wars.

Wrestling with Manhood is the first educational program to pay attention to the enormous popularity of professional wrestling among male youth, addressing its relationship to real life violence and probing the social values that sustain it as a powerful cultural force. Richly illustrating their analysis with numerous examples, Sut Jhally and Jackson Katz; the award winning creators of the videos Dreamworlds and Tough Guise, respectively; offer a new way to think about the enduring problems of men's violence against women and bullying in our schools. Drawing the connections between professional wrestling and the construction of contemporary masculinity, they show how so-called "entertainment" is related to homophobia, sexual assault and relationship violence. They further argue that to not engage with wrestling in a serious manner allows cynical promoters of violence and sexism an uncontested role in the process by which boys become "men".
